"CLIPS, QUOTES, and COMMENTS" is issued on the first and fifteenth of each month, by the Borderland Sciences Research Associates, National Hdqrs., 3524 Adams Ave., San Diego 16, California, USA. --- Twelve issues (six months) for $5.00; six issues (3 months) for $2.50; two issues, $1.00. Contains only short articles and miscellaneous material, supplementary to the B.S.R. bi-monthly ROUND ROBIN. -- N. Meade Layne, National Director.

One of the best "Saucer" stories appearing in the press lately, comes from the Indianapolis Times of Nov. 12, '54. Title: Sky Saucers Terrorize Italy, Report Space Ship Landing: by Mrs James Hogg III, now resident of Florence, Italy. Maybe we should head this ITALIAN WELCOME (stones & tomatoes).*

The 'saucers' are flying thick and fast around here in Italy and many a sceptic is eating his words. We're so annoyed, they've been over Florence three days in a row and we've managed to miss seeing them each time.

I don't know whether the stories are being published in the States. I think the government is still hushing them, but the Italian papers can't very well when half the country is not only seeing them but also seeing a shower of white "glass wool or web" (scientists say that a high-powered jet motor could possibly throw it out) land on the town and countryside whenever they pass.

It started about a week ago when formations of them were seen over Leghorn. The next day was even more interesting -- boats all along the Adriatic wired in descriptions in the space of a half hour or so, so that the course and speed could be fairly well plotted.

Fishermen deserted their boats in terror and the Florentine journalists started writing less facetiously. And the day after that they saw for themselves from the roof of the newspaper offices. A physicist in the center of town saw one cross the sky and with the help of a cloud cover and, timing the trajectory, figured it must have been going about 1500 miles an hour.

The same day this white spun glass business was seen, captured and put in a bottle. Most amusing of all, the football game between Florence and Pistoia that was going on in the stadium came to a complete standstill when several 'flying saucers' went over.

The day before Renato (a friend who owns a television in Florence) came up from Rome and said his television company was planning a program on the 'saucers' and he had interviewed Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, U.S. ambassador, all the foreign attaches and the American Air Force head there. He said they all think they're from outer space, and that Mrs. Luce said that our government would probably soon open up with some of the information they have.

Last night more stories in the paper and this time a really incredible one, incredible and yet credible because they seem too fantastic to be made up. That is: Thursday night in a little town, vicinity Milan somewhere, around 10 o'clock, a man returning from the movies on his bike was passing the local sports field and noticed a light of exceptional intensity, a luminous body and nearby "two small shadows" that emitted strange gutteral sounds. He raced back into the town to call the police and described what he had seen.

A whole group of people went back and later described figures with white pants, grey jackets, helmets seemingly of transparent plastic. "The intense light of the disc enabled them to perceive a face of dark color with a notable prominence, that recalled a "little elephant" (breathing apparatus?). They tried forcing open the gates to the field, and also threw stones (sounds like an average human reaction, enough to discourage any well-meaning Martian) but oddly enough, although the stones hit the disc

NOTES: * Or to paraphrase an old poet of Italy: 'We fear even the gift-bearers'.
 Sensible dog! But why bite Il Signor in the jacket; why not in the vexillum?
About the stones 'hitting something soft', Assoc. H.B.Williams, who sends the clip, says: See BSR publications concerning jelly-like material of Discs'-(mutants).

they didn't make any sound doing so,almost as if they had hit something soft.

The description (which tallies with all the previous ones, although there seem to be several varieties -- i.e., cigars and 'saucers') was of a 'disc' divided in two parts illuminated by a green light "that rested on the ground on three points." The superior part was a hemispheric cabin illuminated by a silver light so strong as to annoy the eyes, and on top of the cabin an antenna. When finally they were able to force the gates and approach the figures, they retreated toward the 'disc' -- "all presentfollowed with beating hearts; none, unfortunately, was armed but they found a box of fruit and threw that."

Then "Il Signor Giacomo Stefanoni tried to sic his big Boxer dog against the Martians, but the beast, intimidated, instead of throwing himself at the Martians, bit his master in the jacket.  While Stefanoni sought to liberate himself from the dog, the two strangers succeeded in reaching the 'disc' and a few instants later, with a sound similar to a shrill boat whistle, it lifted itself vertically from the ground."

Many of the witnesses still have red eyes from the intense light, and the journalist ends cautiously: ' The number of persons who swore to having seen and heard this is without precedent, more than 100. It remains to be seen if the account is authentic or a colossal mystification.'

We are both so completely fascinated and intrigued with the whole business we can't talk about anything else. Whether the stories are true or not, it is certainly true that thousands of people have been seeing such objects in the sky and every day there are photographs. Will they wait another 2000 years to establish contact? If we keep on throwing fruit I suppose they never will. How maddening -- I would give anything to see one, at least it's getting to the point where people don't laugh at us as they did in Evansville." - - - - - - - - - - (e n d) -

The Borderland Sciences Research Associates ANNOUNCE the second (and improved) edition of the booklet "THE COMING OF THE GUARDIANS". This is an interpretation of the phenomena of the Aeroforms ("Flying Saucers" -- "Flying Discs") as given from the Other Side of Life.

This book is a compilation of statements made at intervals over the last eight years by the Controls of the distinguished trance-medium, Mark Probert. The table of contents reads as follows:

FOREWORD: Introductory Remarks -- The Etheric or "4-D" explanation of the Aeroforms -- Biographical Notes on the Communicators.

COMMUNICATIONS from the INNER CIRCLE --(Mediumship of Mark Probert). -- Charles Lingford -- Thomas A. Edison -- Lao-Tse -- Lo Sun Yat -- Professor Alfred Luntz -- Ramond Natalli -- Arakashi -- Rama-Ka-Lao -- The Yada di Shi'Ite.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED THROUGH ROLF TELANO -- CHART OF THE ETHERIC ZONES OF TERRA -- NOTES ON THE MARK PROBERT MEDIUMSHIP.

Scores of publications of every description, thousands of news items and reports of sightings have appeared in print throughout the world, along with many fantastic guesses as to the nature of the phenomena. But apart from the statements of the Probert Controls, not a single worthwhile interpretation has been offered. And all subsequent data on this subject, since 1946, are explicable in terms of this interpretation. Surely this is a crucial test of any explanation - that it should apply to future happenings as well as to those of the past! The statements of the Controls have been elaborated, but never withdrawn or basically changed.

"THE COMING OF THE GUARDIANS" is a mimeographed booklet of about 65 pages (7 x 10"), neatly bound, compiled by Meade Layne, M.A., National Director of BSRA.- Price, $3.00.

TWO NEW SATELLITES FOR EARTH?

According to press reports the earth is said to have captured two chunks of meteoric origin that now circle the earth at 650 and 1,000 km respectively. The press quotes this report from an American aviation magazine. On the other hand ,the International News Center of Astronomy in Copenhagen, Denmark, has reported nothing even remotely resembling alleged satellites. Therefore the press reports must be accepted only with great reserve.

According to the laws of celestial mechanics the capture of a "moon" is a possibility, but an unlikely one. With regard to the relative motion of objects to the earth and the position of our moon, quite a number of special conditions would have to be fulfilled, the concurrence of which would only be possible in the rarest of cases.

Simple consideration shows further that objects of minimum size of 50 to 100 M. diameter and rotating not farther than 1000 KM from the earth, reflect so much sunlight that even the weakest of instruments would show them plainly. Even though mostly situated in the earth's shadow, due to their small distance from earth, they should be observable, notably in the evening or morning sky. It is therefore very unlikely that objects so conspicuous by their motion should not have been observed elsewhere.*

M. Gerstenberger

* Shortly before going to press we received from the Astronomical Center at Heidelberg, the news that Dr. L. LaPaz, Director of the Institute for Meteor Research at (the University of) New Mexico, who was quoted in the press reports, has declared upon inquiry that all newspaper reports so far as they are concerned with his person, are pure invention. There might be the possibility of a misunderstanding, due to an article of his that appeared in February 1954, in the Journal of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, wherein he theorizes on the question of relative perigee motion ensuing in the event earth were surrounded at short distance by small moons. With this our above sceptical position seems fully confirmed.

Q-ENERGY FILM: We continue to get good reports concerning the use of this remarkable product. But Assoc. Verne L. Cameron, inventor of the Aurameter, has several times reported to us that there is a difference between the sides of the film, & that only one of the sides throws off a 'ray' or 'beam'. to which the aurameter gives a definite response. It may be important, in therapeutic use of the film, to find out which side of the film is active. This should be possible for anyone who can use either the aurameter or any form of the pendule, for water dowsing or other purposes. If not already equipped, get a forked twig or small branch, hold it in front of you at about level (ask any dowser about this), and bring it into the 'ray' or beam sideways (rather than point on). The film should be flattened out on a smooth wall where it will adhere by reason of its static charge. If it is 'pasted' against the face of a mirror, the 'beam' is greatly strengthened. If the active side of the film is outward, the dowsing rod (the forked branch) will be strongly deflected when it is thrust into the beam.

Our last issue of Clips & Quotes (C-10) (page 5) carries several paragraphs on this subject. The film is manufactured by Originality House, 480 Avalon Ave., Akron, Ohio.

SARAN WRAP FILM:

Associate D.A. Nicholson, Ph.T. (772 D St., San Bernardino, Calif.) sends us the following note about Saran Wrap, which he says he obtains from his local grocery market. I have no data on any therapeutic or other values of this film; it appears to be as thin as the Q-Energy product described on the previous page and strongly "magnetic". Assoc. Nicholson writes:

> "If you use a pendulum on the front of the film you will get a strong reaction. The ray will go through walls. If you put one piece of the film on a wall you will get a reaction in direct line with it for quite a distance. The ray comes only from one side of the film. With me, right gyration of the pendulum means positive, yes, or abnormality if I am checking human organs; the left gyration means no, negative, and oscillations neutral. I have not been able as yet to find out what use can be made of the ray coming from the film
> "I put a piece of Saran Wrap on the wall of my bedroom, and checking with my pendulum I could detect the radiations through the next wall, the refrigiator, and the outside wall. When I used two pieces, one on the north wall and one on the east, I found that at the intersection of the beams my pendulum would oscillate, which is neutral for me. . ."

In comparison with the Q-Energy film, the Saran Wrap is of course a new product and I do not know that any claims have been made concerning therapeutic uses. The former is backed by some ten years of research and its use is steadily increasing. But the Saran film should obviously be studied, both as a healing agent and as an important problem in radiesthetics. Also, there is great need for some means of detecting the active side of both films, if this difference actually exists; i.e., some means practicable for persons who do not use the Pendule in any of its forms.

Once again, we want to strongly recommend the Psychical Physics of S.W. Tromp, Professor of Geology, Fouad I University, Cairo, Egypt. - 525 pages. Elsevier Book Co., inc. 215 - 4th Ave., N.Y.C. This is an extraordinary compendium of rigidly scientific work, packed full of remarkable data, and most definitely a "must" book for every serious investigator in any field of radiesthesia. Price, $8.00 (and well worth it). (ml)

How to Build and Operate a Two-Way Stretching Machine (for Q-Energy film): This is a copyrighted brochure put out by Originality House. Anyone is allowed to build the machine, but not to take out patents on it. Price of brochure, .50 . 480 Avalon Ave., Akron 20, Ohio.

Q-ENERGY booklet, with small sample of Q-E film, is distributed by BSR Hdqrs. @ $1.00 For larger quantity of the film, in various shapes and packs, order from Originality House at address given above.

THE CHAIN OF LIFE, by Dr. Guyon Richards. Newly reprinted. This book is basic to much of the work later done in Radionic or Wireless Radiation Therapy and covers many years of rigid experimental work. As a pioneer in this field he experimented with a form of the Abrams box, called the Oscilloclast. Part 3 contains much philosophy of the subject, tables of rates and much data of interest to both the technician and the lay-reader. According to our reports, the book is being highly praised by those familiar with or interested in radionics.

Order from the BRITISH RADIESTHESIA ASSOCIATION, BCM/ Radiesthesia - London W.C. 1. England (Employ this exact form of address). Price 1 pound 6 s. Od. ($3.80)

U R A N U S - A new Flying Saucer magazine: Edited by Mr. E.H. Biddle, 1513 High Road, London N. 20, England. Published every second month. Current issue, just received, is No. 2 of Vol. I, October '54. "Not an easy job", comments Editor Biddle. "One man's meat is another's poison. We can only endeavor to balance one point of view with another and to give publicity to all, within reason. The wise student will be ready to modify his views. . . 'There is a great deal of wishful thinking and many unwarranted conclusions... Specious arguments and shaky evidence ... I have an uncomfortable feeling that should any further trouble break out on this lunatic planet of ours, those who are relying on help from the Saucers are booked for a sad disillusionment...' This issue includes an excellent 4-page article by Jimmy Guieu ("Windscreen Diseases and Flying Saucers"), and several pages by Judith L.Gee ("Now I see Them - Now I Don't"). Comments on recent books include Williamson's "The Saucers Speak" - where Editor Biddle's raised eyebrow of suspicion goes higher than ever - and "Venus Speaks", by Cyril Richardson ('which may please those who incline toward the hazier forms of thinking'); and a kind of juvenile romance ('Kings of Space'), by Capt. W.E. Johns.

Our own readers and BSR Associates will be particularly pleased to note, in URANUS, a lengthy quotation from an article entitled "The Nature of the Aeroforms", by Assoc. R.T., published in a former issue of Round Robin. Editor Biddle properly refrains from expressing any definite opinion, but does say that 'the views expressed' (by Assoc. R.T.) 'deserve serious consideration'. Although the BSR interpretation has awakened considerable interest in England, this comes the nearest to being an adequate exposition of it in an English publication.

The article referred to above, by Judith L. Gee, is quotable throughout, but our space will permit only a few lines:

> "We are bewitched, bothered and bewildered. They come, they go. Chase them, and pilots fall into a flat spin, or blackout, or crash. Deny them, as our astronomers do, and they appear over Washington, and are tracked on the radar over Southern England, and Danish pilots swear to them. Hail them over London and they prove to be a cosmological balloon. The thunder we hear is Charles Fort in heaven, heaving with laughter at our bafflement . . . We are within this generation beginning to realize that our three-dimensional world is a minute variation within the possibility of an infinity of dimensions. . . Matter resolves into energy, Flying Saucers into space. We are in the position of naked primitive man before the atom bomb scientist. We gape like children before a power-house. Their knowledge transcends ours. They are literally deus ex machina descending to watch our antic madness. The hubris of mankind or of western scientific civilization has brought its reward, and the Sorcerer's apprentices who cannot control the elements they have conjured into destruction, now meet their masters, who come to judge them."

URANUS also presents a condensed translation of an article published in the Provencal newspaper "Le Meridional", reprinted by permission of M. Guieu, author of an excellent book (now being translated), "Les Soucoupes Volantes viennent d'un autre Mond". (Our current issue of Round Robin (X-4, Nov.-Dec.) carries a review of Les Soucoupes Volantes, by John L. Astley-Cock, M.A.). M. Guieu's article is entitled: FROM "WINDSCREEN DISEASE" TO ... FLYING SAUCERS." I believe our readers will not only excuse but commend us, if we give much of our C-11 space to extended quotation, beginning on the following page.

(From "WINDSCREEN DISEASE" to FLYING SAUCERS (by Jimmy Guieu) --- In spite of tens of thousands of cases in the world, of photos of shattered windscreens, of samples sent to various laboratories, the scientific world persists in denying the evidence: "windscreen disease does not exist! "Cancer of Glass" is only a more or less collective psychosis. Affected screens have simply been broken or cracked by a pebble, by engine vibration, by ultra sounds, by a slight distortion of the bodywork, etc., etc.

And yet, in a single day, at Everett (near Seattle, U.S.A.) 900 cars had their windscreens crack, break into pieces or become covered with tiny holes or splits. At Bellingham (NNW of the State of Washington) 1500 cases were recorded in a week and 4294 cases at Seattle in the same period. Can one explain by any of the above theories? This is utterly impossible, for preliminary analysis has brought to light the presence, in the minute interstices and holes in the glass, of certain granules of a magnetic nature, that is to say, attracted or repulsed by a magnet. Since when has grit from city streets, or even in the country, been of a "magnetic nature"? Since when have vibration, ultra sounds, generated granules been attracted or repulsed by a magnet? Is a slight distortion of the bodywork sufficient to produce microscopic grains of a magnetic nature?

This strange "Cancer of Glass" is not satisfied with just windscreens. The "complaint" is now attacking ordinary glass. Instances have been recorded of inexplicable breaking of empty bottles, glass ash-trays, pyrex basins and even watch glasses, not to mention drinking glasses! It should be noted that these objects - like most of the windscreens - were neither touched nor bumped into.

Two recent cases stand out clearly by reason of their strangeness. The first was witnessed by one of my friends, M. Chabot, technical translator in an important airplane construction factory. After having had cafe au lait with his lunch, M. Chabot put his pyrex bowl on a wooden table covered with a waxed cloth made of plastic material. The bowl was hardly warm. M. Chabot was attending to his affairs when suddenly, behind his back, a violent detonation made him jump up. He turned, glanced round the room and noticed, not without surprise, that his bowl had disappeared, literally pulverized into innumerable fragments, of which the largest did not reach the diameter of a lentil. The explosion of the basin had been so violent that numerous glass splinters were embedded in the thick material covering the dining-room chairs!

Stranger still is the following incident: On Saturday, July 17th, on the road to Istres, a textile merchant and his wife were cruising along in their little van at some 100 km an hour. All at once, the driver noticed, at a slight distance from the windscreen, a strange bluish light. Then everything happened in a flash! Did the bluish light reach the windscreen, or did it emanate from it, in immediately preceding the incident proper? Impossible to say. The fact is, that after the appearance of this mysterious light the windscreen flew into splinters. The driver braked hard and stopped. At the same time as the windscreen splintered, a strange whitish mist, an impalpable but sharply defined cloud, formed in the van. The driver's wife felt an inexplicable heat envelope her bust. A kind of uniform pressure pressed her nylon blouse to her skin; we must emphasize that neither the wind nor the surrounding warm air had any part in this phenomenon.

Imagine this business lady's astonishment on discovering, immediately after experiencing this strange sensation, that her white nylon blouse had become straw yellow!

And now it's up to you, gentlemen of science. (I omit here cases quoted by the author where scientists in the past have been compelled to eat their words and confess their errors.)

Let us take another order of ideas. FLYING SAUCERS, for example, are an absolute reality. Tens of thousands of persons (certain of whom are scientists, technicians, pilots, radar operators, etc.) say they have seen them. Result: the majority of "men of science" treat all these trustworthy observers as visionaries or humbugs! The world is so made that those whose minds are not sufficiently open to the unknown treat as mentally deficient the people who have the audacity to uphold certain facts (improbable but authentic) of which they were the witnesses.

IS THERE A CONNECTION BETWEEN "CANCER OF GLASS" AND THE FLYING SAUCERS? A priori, this question may seem far-fetched. All the same, let us examine it.

No one is ignorant of the fact that there are, in interplanetary and interstellar space, cosmic clouds composed of calcium, hydrogen, atoms of iron, etc. In the same way there are spores (theory of panspermia, according to which the vital germs are scattered throughout interplanetary and interstellar space; vital germs possibly at the origin of life on the earth.)

These "clouds of spores" can be likened to accumulations of sexual cells, or kinds of bacteria, ultra-virus or other micro-organisms unknown to man, carried along by cosmic dust or meteorites (of a magnetic nature!) In the case which interests us, the kernel of these spores would not be composed of carbon (as our cells are) but of silicon. These spores have been travelling in cosmic space for centuries, perhaps thousands of years, in a state of anabiosis (suspended animation, a kind of enforced hibernation) and this in the cold of empty space, - i.e., - 273 C! Floating in space, these spores one day get "captured" by the attraction of some heavenly body (sun or planet.)

On contact with an atmosphere not incompatible with their mode of life, these spores come out of their state of anabiosis and again become active. Originating in silicon, these spores, to nourish themselves ... would attack glass and, acting in a way something like the enzymes or bacteria which change the nature of certain materials and compounds, they would corrupt the glass (silicate) from which they would extract their "nourishment". By "nourishment" we might understand absorption of energy, causing a breakdown of the atomic or molecular equilibrium of the glass whence: splintering, cracking, etc.

Having advanced this hypothesis (for we are dealing with nothing more than an hypothesis), let us now examine the possible relationship between these spores and th Flying Saucers.

Ships and cargoes can spread frightful epidemics in bringing germ-carrying rats from infected areas. The same eventuality can be envisaged with the flying discs coming from another world. Flying Saucers may have traversed these clouds of spores drifting in space at the mercy of gravitation. The spores may have become deposited in an agglomeration on the surface of one or several disc-shaped spaceships which, entering our atmosphere later, would involuntarily let loose on our continents a mass of spores carried from interplanetary or interstellar space.

Dislodged from their hiding places on the surface of the discs by the first traces of atmosphere, the spores would have escaped damage or destruction through friction; they would, then, have fallen gently, to reach the ground - or the sea - in perfect condition, or virtually so.

A mere hypothesis, certainly, but one which we should do well to consider.

In spite of its aversion to what it would call irrational, the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (Marseilles Branch) has seen fit, at my request, to accept for analysis glass attacked by this mysterious "epidemic". I hope the CNRS at Paris, better equipped than the provincial branches, will also agree to analyze minutely samples sent to it. An ultraviolet examination will be insufficient. It seems indispensable to study "windscreen disease" with the electronic microscope, among other processes of scientific investigation of our atomic era. A large number of thorough analyses will be necessary on an equally numerous selection of samples if we are to succeed in isolating the cause of this hitherto unexplained "sickness".

"Cancer of Glass" exists; the discoid spaceships inappropriately called "flying saucers" exist. The man of science owes it to himself to study them.

A witty reflection of the great Henri Poincare fits exactly the problem of the flying saucers as well as that of "windscreen disease": "To doubt everything, or to believe everything, are two solutions equally convenient; they both enable us to dispense with thinking."

I can only add, by way of conclusion, the words of Lieut. Plantier, author of a revolutionary and perfectly scientific theory of the nature and propulsive system of the flying saucers: "The scoffers, the sceptics and the indifferent have never been builders or defenders of human achievements."

Further Note re Q-E and Saran Film: "This Q-E film is active on BOTH sides. The Saran Wrap is active only on one side, the side that faces the core of the roll. A little stretching gives it more strength. I have an idea its rays are destructive in some instances. If an Assoc. can find a tree with a cancerous growth he might wrap it with 5 or 6 sheets of Sarvan and report results. Sarvan is a DOW product; sold at most large markets".... D.A. Nicholson, PH.J., 772 D St. San Bernardino, Calif.

Announcement: by Rev. H.A. Cronk; 2465 Territorial Rd.,St.Paul 14, Minnesota. "I am interested in spirit photography (internationally), pertaining to corporeal atmospheres and Etherean phases also. Please send photo. proofs of your work, dated if possible, with explanation, and you will be placed on a classified roster. Readers of CQC and RR please send names of such photographers. Unusual clairvoyant and symbolic work also requested. ."

New Facts About Magnetism are discussed in a 30-page brochure, entitled A NEW SUSPENSION OF THE MAGNETIC NEEDLE, by Rev. A. Glazewski. Reprinted from Radioperception, Vol. xi, 80, June '53; issued by Markham House Press, 31 King's Road, London S.W. 3, Eng. Under "General Conclusions" (pg 26) the factual results include: (1) The existence of an east-west magnetic polarity (2) The, at least three, axes of any magnetic bar (3) The existence of a something which was called the Etheroid which impregnates the surrounding medium of the magnetic core. "These may well be the cause of opening a new chapter in science". Of interest to all students of radiesthesia. Order from Markham House: 2/3 d, or $0.50.

"Editor ROUND ROBIN: I am writing you because I thought you might like to know about our research group. We call ourselves "The U.F.O. Research Organization." Anyone interested in observing U.F.O.'s can join. They would try to observe as many as possible and then send us detailed reports on report sheets that will be supplied to them. We need detailed information in our research work and to help us obtain this, members in just the Akron area have eight telescopes, the largest being an eight-inch reflector. We are mostly an observing group, and have made many good sightings." --- Fred Kirsch, Director, U.F.O. Research Organization.

(It is very unusual for any amateur group to possess equipment of this kind; it is to be hoped that many of our Associates will cooperate, and that the UFO-RO will make its findings accessible in some way. ML).

George Hunt Williamson, writing in VALOR of Nov. 20, refers to several recent cases of the much-derided "little men". (The existence of these dwarf-size beings is now as well established as that of the Discs themselves). Germany, Belgium, Egypt, The Argentine, East Africa, Central Africa - Dr. Williamson mentions reports from these and other areas; quotes from a letter-to-Editor which says:

> "After reading, 'They're not telling the truth about Spies from Outer Space, by Frank Edwards, I was surprised to learn that our newspapers have published only 68 sightings in the first five months of 1954, when actually there were 700 sighting per week. . ."

This figure of "700 per week" was quoted on the air by Frank Edwards, as coming from the Commanding Officer at Wright Field; that is, while there may have been numerous duplications, still only one Base was reporting. What would the total for the US have been - and for the world!! We can understand the desperate hope of the authorities, that the whole matter will somehow solve itself - and that in any case, the shock of coming developments will somehow be cushioned by ignorance - that the less the public knows the less alarmed it will be by Visitation and disaster!!

We call attention to "Phenomenal Manifestations Heralding the New Age", being Lecture No. 7, Part III; Synopsis of an address given in Toronto; Nov. 54. (Copy, .15, Periscope Pub. Co.,2100 Queen St. East, Toronto 8, Ontario, Canada). The BSR Director disclaims any particular interest in the religionistic approach of these Eason lectures, but they often contain factual and scientific data of importance. In Lect. 7 Part III the following sections deserve attention:

> The Change-Over to a New North Pole Star (pg.4) -- Earth's Magnetic North Pole Becoming Very Erratic -- Our Solar system Also in Transition -- Various items beginning with Nuclear Physicist Reveals... etc., to end.

We repeat that the key to the whole situation, the one integrating factor, lies in the physical condition of our planet. The world-wide climatic disturbances, the coming of the Space People, their decade-long survey of terrestrial conditions, their sampling of earth, air and water, their penetration of the sea depths, their many alleged warnings to humanity, the increasing seismic disturbancesand a long list of minor phenomena involved under these heads - all these reduce to a single gigantic problem in terrestrial physics. The metaphysical, mystical, even the religious approach are still basic and unavoidable, but if we are going to try to think about this incredible planetary situation, and keep our wits at the same time, let s think of it as a physical-chemical-astronomical problem, one that we could put into equations if we were smart enough, just as we could with a comet or an earthquake. The pieces of the puzzle-picture will begin to fall together then - for good or bad, better or worse as our own minds react to it. (ml)

"C.Q.C." C-12 (Dec. 15, 54) C-12

MEMO. IN MEMORIAM:

Wednesday, Dec. 5, 1945 was the date of this sad mystery. The MIAMI HERALD of Dec. 5, 1954, remembers the date with the article quoted below - and our Associate Dr. Philip Cosman sends us the clipping:

"At 10 minutes past 2 o'clock ... a squadron of five TBM Avenger bombers squatted on the runways. Fourteen men climbed into the planes and took off on what was to be a routine training flight. They were to fly a triangle extending 100 miles out to sea, between Florida's east coast and the Bahamas. Their mission was to last two hours. The weather was clear and rather cool for South Florida, even in December. A moderate, occasionally fresh northwest wind was blowing.

"An hour and 35 minutes after take-off the squadron leader radioed his Base indicating he was not entirely certain of his position. An hour and 40 minutes later another message came saying the planes were 75 miles north-east of the Banana River Naval Air Station, and 225 miles northeast of their Base. The Navy dispatched a big PBM Martin Mariner. It carried two lieutenants, 3 ensigns, 8 enlisted men and the latest rescue equipment.

"As the minutes passed with no word from the Avengers or the Mariner, the Navy realized that instead of 5 planes and 14 men missing, there were 6 planes and 27 men. An air-sea rescue plane from the Coast Guard base at Miami swept over the area, but returned after darkness fell. Daybreak found Navy and Coast Guard air and surface craft joined in an ever-widening search.

"By Friday, when still no word had come from the missing planes, 242 aircraft were combing a 500-mile front, from Key West to Jacksonville, extending 250 miles into the Atlantic and west to the Gulf of Mexico.

"The organized search covered 380,000 square miles over sea and land.

"Months later, the Navy said not a single clue had been uncovered as to the fate of the 27 missing men, nor had a trace of their planes been found. In the nine years that have passed, their fate remained a mystery."

(Staff Writer Gene Plowden)

Distressing and mysterious as this happening was (and is), it is remembered mainly for its size - the number of men and the great amount of equipment involved; but in essentials it is only one more item in the huge unwritten volume of the Vanished Ones. Indeed, in the so-called Esoteric Tradition we hear of entire racial groups disappearing without trace or survivors - and with this goes the assertion, that for one reason or another these groups were "taken" to other planets, just as other races are said to have been transplanted here. . . Even if one accepts this, it does not, of course, necessarily apply to all disappearances (after 'normal' or 'natural' explanations are exhausted).

But it is in my mind that the last ten years have taught us much - those of us who are willing to learn. "Space" is not emptiness. The Invisible is not unpopulate. Living Entities are everywhere - greater and lesser, better and worse than mankind. The limitations of our senses are screens against them, making life on the earth-plane possible. Excarnate humans throng our streets; but others of different races and descent come and go in invisible multitudes - -

These six planes and 27 men - like crews of ships, groups and families and a long uncountable roster of individuals, animals too, objects of all kinds, reported all down the centuries - were they "wanted" somewhere else, taken to 'another planet' -- flicked, that is, into ranges of vibration imperceptible to us , 'dark stars', worlds within worlds where their knowledge and skills might serve some wider purposes? - Well, little by little the age of 'astronomical darkness' is ending; faint streaks of the light of human intelligence may presage a wider dawn.

(Oklahoma City Times, Dec. 6-1954)--"Scot Monster Huge, Weird, Sailors Claim."-Glasgow, Scotland (AP): The crew of the trawler Rival claimed today they have proved the existence of the legendary Loch Ness monster --or something about as weird-- with their echo-sounding equipment. Their 'monster', they reported, is 50 feet long and has approximately eight legs and the silhouette of a gigantic scorpion.

The echo sounder charts underwater depths and schools of fish by recording the time a sound takes to echo back to the device. Peter Anderson of the Rival's crew reported the mystery object was located at a depth of 540 feet, 180 feet above the bed of the Scottish lake where the monster is reported seen every so often.

Anderson said he was at the ship's wheel, bound for the west coast fishing grounds when'suddenly out of the corner of my eye, I saw the graph needle of the echo sounder start to draw an astounding shape . . . .

I shouted to the captain and other seven crew members -- they were down below having tea -- and they came crowding up to the wheel-house. At once we turned the boat about and tried to track the monster again, but we must have frightened it away.' The graph showed a small-headed thing with an ungainly body and a tail about 18 feet long.

L. A. Southport, technical expert of the firm which makes the echo-sounding equipment, said the echograph 'was definitely animal matter of some kind' and 'certainly was not a whale or like any other kind of fish that has ever been heard of'. --(credit Loren Gee, BSRA).

Not to be outdone ('no bigger or worse C-serpents anywhere'), San Diego papers recently reported some kind of monster off the Southern California coast. Then the BSR office lost the clip. Then the S.D. Tribune printed a follow-up, which is the best we can do for you at present: Article is headed "Monster off La Jolla - Sea Serpent Tale Gets New Backer." Columnist Don Harris:

"The La Jolla sea serpent story got bigger today with the revelation that the same monster, or a close cousin, had been sighted long ago. He, she, or it presumably makes a home in the deep subterranean canyon running out from the shore off La Jolla - where two fishermen said they saw the thing last week, and where another La Jollan said he saw it ten years ago. The two fishermen agreed it was a horrible sight and scooted away fast when it submerged. The third, Manning Edmonsen, 7195 Country Club Drive, La Jolla, said he viewed it from the deck of a warship, and that "it looked just like the one Grant King and Phil Parker said they saw the other day. . . We first thought it was a big stump and changed course. I'm a trained observer and when we closed to within 100 yards - I knew I'd never seen anything like that. It seemed to rise out of the water about 9 or 10 feet. It was a great big cone-shaped living mass and looked something like a spar buoy, except that it had dark hair and a wrinkled face. It didn't seem to thrash around in the water ... just seemed to turn and watch as we circled." The eyes, if it has any "were hidden by the hair."

The sea serpent has been a jokester's pet for generations - but the great sea trenches are close to six miles in depth. What nightmare fauna may abide in them is beyond conjecture. What incredible monstrosities may emerge from them is equally unknown. Behemoth and Leviathan the sea-dragon ("the scaly horror of his folded tail") may prove quite as factual as their ilk now swarming from the overhead seas of air and space. . . And there are many reports of disturbances of sea life, migrations of fish, increased temperature of the sea bottoms. Volcanic and other seismic changes under-sea may bring forth strange visitors . . .

"Little Men" Again. -- "VIMANA", publication of Detroit Flying Saucer Club, October 15, 1954, prints the following: (Publication offices: 6432 Cass Avenue, Detroit 2, Michigan. -- Copy, .25). "Lawrence Cardenas, middle-aged and of Mexican descent, is Chief Steward of the Laundry at Dearborn Inn. As he was driving to his work between 4:30 and 5:00 A.M. on Thursday, September 30, this unbelievable incident occurred. Traveling west on Rotunda Road, he slowed his car about one-third of a mile from the Southfield intersection so he could make the green traffic light. On his right was a large vacant field where a road was being cut through, and he could make out the dim outline of the silent derrick crane way to the north. Suddenly he came upon what seemed a veritable colony of "little men", standing nearby the road, jabbering together apparently, and gesticulating with their hands. They were clad in bright green uniforms, were approximately five feet four inches high, and on their heads wore what resembled tight fitting "skull-caps" with pointed beaks on their front. There were perhaps twelve or fifteen of them, several of whom were circling a larger man, in a brown uniform, who stood perhaps six inches taller than the rest, and appeared to be a leader. The entire party had heavy goggles over their eyes, and gave the appearance of breathing some type of oxygen.

"Cardenas noticed that the dawn was breaking, and though no other cars were in the immediate vicinity, he was nearly thunderstruck when, looking beyond this group, he noticed a large ovaled object about two hundred feet north from these men, standing on the grass mound in the distance, with lights near the top which flickered off and on, in translucent colors. It seemed about ten feet high, with the sides smoothly tapered, making him think of a sea-shell.

"Mr. Cardenas does not know now why he did not stop his car, or turn around and go back to investigate these "little men." He was not afraid, and they appeared friendly. . . even curious about the environ they were in. But Cardenas also knew that he could be late to work, and up to this time he had never become very interested in 'flying saucers'.

"Mr. Howard Kohl, one of our Directors, has interrogated Mr. and Mrs. Cardenas at length, and Laura Marxer has known this Mexican and his wife for many years. Everyone speaks very highly of him, and his dependability and integrity are without reproach."

FLYING SAUCERS FROM MARS is the title of a new book, announced by Markham House Press (31 King's Road, London S.W.3, Eng.) I have not seen this book but quote from the publisher:

"Since the existence of flying saucers was first announced in 1947, much has been written about them. Some authorities regard them as due to such phenomena as cloud formations and high-level ice crystals ... but there is a strong argument in favor of their being space ships from other planets... This book is not a sensational story but a sober scientific document. It contains selection of the author's remarkable and hitherto unpublished photographs. . . Price 10 shillings 6 pence (about $1.60).

This sounds as if it were well worth reading - does NOT sound as if the author, Cedric Allingham, had more than a piece of the truth, so to speak, as to the basic interpretation of the aeroforms. But he has a great deal of company in that poverty (and only the BSR to help him out!). If it's a liberal-minded scientific approach we're all for it.

WHAT ARE THE AEROFORMS MADE OF?

We have pointed out many times, that the phenomena of the aeroforms are highly complex. More than two years ago, communications received via Rolf Telano listed and described at least a dozen different types of craft and their various means of propulsion within our atmosphere. Physical conditions of our planet, of the solar system, and even (it is believed) in "outer space" are also complex and strangely disturbed. The first and easy inference is, that no single, easy, simple yet satisfactory 'solution' or explanation can be given by anyone.

The phenomena under (at least partial) observation involve (1) aeroforms which we may call air-borne; i.e., UFO's in passage in our atmosphere (2) the "landed" craft, or hovering near the earth. These latter are (we have admitted repeatedly) just as 'material', as solid and substantial as any airplane of our earth manufacture. Occupants of these craft are said to be entirely humanlike in some cases, and at least 'humanoid' in others.

The easy and popular inference has been, that these (landed) craft are tooled-up in some planetary plant or machine shop, made out of metals similar to those we have here, and that all we lack is the blueprints and the right kind of fuel - and all-aboard for Jupiter and way-points!

Observation of UFO's in flight, however, reveals that this kind of alleged thinking is much too 'slick' to hold onto. If these objects have a fixed material composition - if a "steel" Disc is always steel-like, on earth, in the air, and beyond the atmosphere (and this applies to all types of aeroforms) - then we must explain how such material can sustain the condtions of enormous speed and abrupt maneuver. (Also, beyond the ionosphere the cosmic ray ray penetration requires about 15 feet of lead as a shield for human life).

The idea that the UFO's have a fixed permanent form of metal or metal-like substance, will have to reckon with the facts of mutation - and mutation into almost an endless variety of forms is the most important characteristic of these craft. But in hundreds of pages of theorizing we find almost no attention given to this. I quote a few illustrative data from the current Saucerian:

Sydney, Australia: A "flying bus" about 440 ft. long. Also in Australia: "A semi-transparent object shaped like a mushroom, oscillating rapidly". In England, "a flying dust-bin lid". In Alaska, "a flying dumbbell - two metallic balls connected by a rod". Over St. Louis, Mo/ "Irregular-shaped, milky, cloudlike object, a weird amorphous mass, about 200 ft. fromthe ground, travelling slow, hopping over obstacles* "From all over the world (says Editor Barker) witnesses were reporting flying cigars, mushrooms, barrels, spheres, even flying chamber pots"

'A Flying Jelly-fish over Labrador - seven weird black objects flying parallel with an airliner'. The objects changed shape while flying. -- Object over Regent's Park, changing shape and dividing into parts ... A "red-hot" object over Bristol Channel. Brilliant white cigar-shaped object (Hants, Eng.)... "Mushroom shape, pulsating and changing, over Barry, Eng.' 'An enormously complicated object over North Bay, Ont. Hovered about six feet above a telegraph pole, with brilliant pulsating light.'

(I am reminded that once when I reported a "flying pig" over N.Carolina, to the Yada di Shi'ite, he inquired interestdly:"Did you hear it grunt?"... He went on to say: "These absurd forms are sometimes made sportively, or to attract interest and attention of earth people, who otherwise disregard them."

* "This kind of UFO" (says editor Barker of Saucerian) "makes one consider the BSRA theories a little harder ... that Saucers do not consist of matter as we conventionally think of it". -- Data in the indented paragraphs from Jan. Saucerian.

(Speaking again of the Yada, this Control remarked on Dec. 9, '54, that the "tinsel" or "Angel hair" - the silvery streamers left behind in the flight of some of the Discs, is intended to help clear our atmosphere of harmful radiations and/or atom-bomb fall-out - serving the same purposes as the green "meteorites". I hope to get more information about this substance - which may have a copper component).

Recurring to mutation in flight of UFO's: There have been sightings of these as solid geometric shapes - squares, triangles, pyramids, carrying lights in some instances. But these and the multitude of other strange aerial forms do not land as such. But since they are obviously mutant in flight, a reasonable inference would be, that they can convert their substance into metal or metal-like material. It is known also, that landed craft often do not take off in observable flight, but disappear almost instantly. There is reason to think that others which appear to withdraw are really "fading out" of our perceptual range by changing their vibratory rates. And there are cases of transparent, or at least translucent "landed" Discs - some of which remain tangible while still invisible.

The whole mass of the data seem to suggest, if not to prove, that the aeroforms either landed or in passage are not made of any kind of substance we are familiar with - that is, as their permanent composition. It is probable that the Operators could make a ship out of terrestial metal, or its etheric counterpart, or indeed of of any other substance. But when these craft take off at enormous speed, materials known to us would not stand the strains; There will,therefore have to be a reconversion into some grade of etheric substance.

It is quite possible, too - if not highly probable - that ships from immense distances, measureable in light years, do not "cross space" at all, but emerge onto our plane of perception by converting their energy rates; and then make for themselves out-of-hand whatever propulsion devices and mechanism are called for within our magnetic and gravitational field - and that these may be discarded on withdrawing into other space areas. Let me make plain that this suggestion is pure hypothesis and is NOT to be attributed to the MP Controls or anyone else than myself; but it seems to be one possible way of thinking, or trying to think about the data as they now stand. My principal concern is totinsist that all inferences based on the seemingly natural and terrestial material of the landed discs, are NOT logical, and so far from 'saving' all the facts, actually ignore the most important and conspicuous ones.

There is at present an immense amount of 'saucer activity' in the Southern Hemisphere, in Central Africa and in the countries of the Australian Commonwealth, and sightings are reported literally by the thousands. The BSR correspondence now extends into these areas, and the whole Saucer problem is being taken very seriously, by educated people and professional workers. The interpretation advanced by the BSRA is receiving serious and respectful attention by our friends 'down under' - and this is also true of Associates and publicists in England. The progress of events may of course take all initiative away from us - and from everybody; but meantime our Associates in the U.S. need not feel that they traffic in a hopeless cause, but rather in one which gains strength daily, in proportion as our attitude is inder - stood.

You can assist in this progress by sending out, or asking us to send sample copies of CQC to the "right" people; and we hope newcomers will understand that this small publication, while hastily put together, is something like a 'house organ' and designed principally for Associates interested in our special approach to the Aeroform problem - first received by us from the M.P. Controls in 1946, and the only adequate interpretztion so far offered the public anywhere.

We recently printed a communication from the Mark Probert Control, Ramon Natalli, concerning the propulsion of the Space-Craft when beyond the ionosphere, and also about the changing colors. In this connection we have the following paragraph from Associate Ralph M. Holland:

"Regarding the "For Your Information" Release from Natalli, November 3, 1954: This is in general agreement with the information which I have, so I would, naturally, endorse it. I do not have a copy of the Nor communications at hand at the moment but, as near as I can recall, it stated that the magnetic form of propulsion could 'only be used near the surface of some planet' -- or words to that effect. As to operating on 'solar energy' beyond this point, this is in general agreement with the Nor statement about 'primary drive' which uses the 'universal energy flows' (as I recall it). That is to say, they mean the same thing with their 'universal energy flows' as Natalli means with his 'solar energy'. Actually, both terms are correct, and both are incorrect, if one takes a strict technical point of view. The actual nature of the energy involved is difficult to describe to an Earthling, since they lack the background for a really correct technical explanation. The problem is to find some explanation which is approximately correct, and which the people here are able to understand. The Nors did not use the term 'solar energy' because there is a great deal of misunderstanding here about the sun, and it is likely to produce an incorrect mental picture (in their opinion). However, 'solar energy' is a perfectly good term to use, since the sun is the energy focus -- sort of a collecting and distributing point for these universal energy flows -- in this solar system. . . . . "

For material relative to the foregoing, i.e., to types of aeroforms and propulsion methods, we again refer our readers to our 11-page brochure entitled THE FLYING SAUCERS, by Rolf Telano. This remains the most detailed and analytical statement known to us, and shows the futility of trying to cover the whole of the phenomena by a few simple formulas. The RT brochure is accompanied by a statement from the YADA DI' SHI'ITE, and a "Corrective Memorandum" covering the nature of the Beings who operate many of the Discs. THAT "SPUN GLASS" OR "ANGEL HAIR" BUSINESS: Assoc. Mr. & Mrs Thomas of Spokane, visiting BSR Hdqrs. lately, reported that there was a widespread fall of this tinsel-like stuff, about 50 miles south from Red Bluff, Calif. The upper air seemed filled with it but it did not accumulate on the ground, athough a good deal adhered for a time to trees and shrubs. By breaking of twigs they were able to get some of it into a small jar, and we hope to get a sample of this, if it has not yet 'evaporated'. This 'fall' was not accompanied by the appearance of any "saucers" (these may have been present but invisible); but reports from Italy and elsewhere are that the 'spun glass' does appear as a trail or fall from the aeroforms. It may be a by-product of some kind of propulsion process employed in our atmosphere - or maybe a means or a result of clearing our air of certain harmful elements. Or ... it's your turn to guess. If you get a chance, pick up this stuff on a twig or stick wrapped in black cloth and put it in a covered bottle. It will discolor the hands temporarily, but is not known to be dangerous in any way. If it disappears from a closed container, it may still be present in a gaseous state and might respond to physical tests; or it may be borderland etheric stuff which cannot be confined. Keep BSR Hdqrs posted on this.

* THE SAUCERIAN: Latest issue (Jan. '55) just received at BSR Hdqrs., contains 46 closely printed pages; illustrated. Fifteen pages of "Saucernews", 30 of longer items and articles. Well selected, interesting and important. BSR Associates and our many friends will be pleased with a 4-page exposition of the BSR interpretation of the aeroforms (pg. 41 ff). Editor Gray Barker does not commit himself (quite rightly) to any full acceptance, but is eminently fair, open-minded, and grasps the essentials of the "4-D" approach. The BSRA do NOT claim credit for originating the 4-D (etheric) concept, and recognize the difficulties of presenting it. But the future will justify it,and we thank Gray Barker for a public service. MISCELLANEOUS

SMOG: Associate George C. Wilson (Sta.Barbara) sends us the Dec. 1 issue of FORTNIGHT, which prints the whole of the Blewett Report on this very serious matter (15 pages). His comment is: "Increased ultraviolet stratosphere radiation forming ozone is in line with the thinking of the Inner Circle." It is also in line with the ideas of a number of BSR Associates and we recommend that it be read carefully. (Fortnight is on news stands @ .20).

Spiritism & the Beginnings of Christianity: by J.R.L. Morrell. This is an 87-page brochure, pocket size, written in 1930; should appeal to everyone interested in the role of Apollonius in the history of Christianity (recently attracting much attention). BSR Hdqrs has obtained a few copies from the publishers, Morrell and Bahler (Morrell Bldg., Remington, Ind.), and can offer them @ $1.00 each. (BSRA #42)

Readers of MYSTIC magazine will perhaps be interested in their department giving questions put to the M.P. Control Yada di Shi'ite, and the Yada's answers. We call particular attention to Question 12 and the reply, in next issue of Mystic.

Associate Dale Hoon, of 4208 Mound St., Ashland, Ky., wants to obtain copies of the M.P. Seance Reports Nos. 2-3-5-6-8-9-10. Send him a card if you wish to dispose of your copies; we have none at Hdqrs.

Associates interested in radiesthesia are invited to communicate with R.E. ESPIAU, 40 Norland Square, Holland Park Ave., London W.11, Eng. Mr. R.E.E. offers full instructions and advice to beginners in the study and use of radiesthetic devices.

We remind Associates of a memo. sent out with last issue of Round Robin (X-4, Nov.-Dec.). If you have saleable and worthwhile books, in the field of BSR interests - and if they are simply taking up shelf-room in your house - why not donate them to BSR Hdqrs. with permission to advertise and sell at any price determined by us. That's to help out BSR, of course. Please note the two IF's - and the third one is: IF you want to.

The Little Listening Post, Vol.I No.4, prints a "Special Notice": "Write to Thos, O'Neill, Pres. Mutual Broadcasting System, 1440 Broadway, N.Y., for date when indispensable newscaster Frank Edwards will be back on the air." You might add - 'and free to talk about Saucers as much as he likes' ... The L.L.P. is newsy and accurate. Pub. at 4811 Illinois Ave. N.W. Washington. Four issues for $1.00.

PLEASE NOTE: BSRA item No. 15, Transcripts of the M.P. seances, will hereafter be offered as separate brochures and not by subscription (.50 each). But our Associates who have been receiving these Transcripts on a subscription basis will receive the full number paid for, as fast as these can be made available.

We have a few copies of Marian VerHoven's MUSICAL THERAPY - a 12-page printed brochure, attractive cover, @ .50
